Greetings from Congressman Mike Honda on the Indo-American Community Federation's Sixth Annual Unity Dinner 2007

March 23, 2007

It gives me great pleasure to welcome everyone to the Unity Dinner 2007. Tonight's event is an excellent opportunity for all members of the community to come together to learn more about Indo-American culture and celebrate some of the unique customs and traditions that help make the greater Bay Area one of the most exciting and diverse places in the United States.

It's wonderful to see a great representation from so many different ethnic groups. Your presence demonstrates your willingness to gain a better understanding of Indo-American culture, and I applaud you for your effort. It also is important that despite all the differences, we can stand united as Americans.

I would like to congratulate Mr. Jeevan Zutshi and all those on his team who have generously donated their time and effort in reaching out to the community in helping them to gain an understanding of the Indo-American community. And I would like to also congratulate the Indo-American community for all the work they have accomplished in reaching out to their community in the effort of making the community a safer place to live and work.

I offer my best wishes for a successful dinner and a promising future year.

Sincerely,

Michael M. Honda
